Tori is responsible for Madison Marquette's overall financial strategy, financial reporting, tax compliance and corporate financing. She also assists in raising equity capital and arranging project-level debt financing handled by the capital markets team. As a member of the company's senior management team, Tori works closely with the CEO, Chief Operating Officer, Chairman of the Board, and with services line leaders.

In 2021, she joined Madison Marquette bringing two years as the Chief Financial Officer at Korman Communities and over 35 years of experience in the real estate industry, including 21 years as a partner at PricewaterhouseCoopers (PwC). At PwC, she was the lead engagement partner for Madison Marquette for nine years. At Korman Communities and PwC she delivered comprehensive financial and operational insights to owners, executives and boards of private and public entities across a breadth of industry groups including industrial, retail, construction, real estate development/management, and hospitality. Her C-suite and boardroom experience provides benefits involving leadership, audit committees and corporate governance, and risk management internal control. Her expertise also extends to regulatory relations, complex asset valuation, M&A, and fraud/forensic investigations. As a trusted financial executive and leader, Tori has an outstanding record of delivering solutions to complex financial and accounting issues and building and directing effective teams.

Tori earned a Bachelor of Business Administration in Accounting with emphasis in real estate from The University of Texas at Austin.
